What are cookies?

Cookies are files or pieces of information that may be stored on your computer (or another enabled device, such as a tablet or smartphone) when you visit our website. A cookie usually contains the name of the website it comes from, its "lifetime" (i.e. how long it is stored) and an assigned value, which is usually a randomly generated unique number.

The cookies we use are safe for your devices. In particular, they cannot be used to transfer viruses or other unwanted or malicious software to your devices.

As a rule, cookies do not collect personal data, but in some cases they may constitute information about an identified or identifiable natural person, i.e. personal data (the rules on how we process personal data can be found in our Privacy Policy).

What types of cookies do we use?

- session cookies: temporary cookies that remain on your device until you leave our website;
- persistent cookies: cookies that remain on your device for the "lifetime" set for the cookie or until you delete them (how long a cookie stays on your device depends on its "lifetime" and on your browser settings).

Cookies on our website serve different purposes:

- "strictly necessary" cookies enable you to use the services available on our website; these are technical cookies without which the website cannot work properly;
- "analytics" (statistical) cookies enable us to collect information on how our website is used;
- "advertising"/"marketing" cookies enable us to display advertisements tailored to the user of our website, their preferences and interests, and the websites they visit;
- unclassified/"other" cookies are cookies that we have not been able to classify according to the categories above, but which should nevertheless be disclosed.

In many cases, web browsers allow cookies to be stored on your device by default. You may change your browser's cookie settings at any time. For example, you can set your browser to block cookies automatically or to notify you each time a cookie is placed on your device. Detailed information on how to manage cookies is available in your software (web browser) settings.

Our website uses both our own ("first-party") cookies and third-party cookies, i.e. cookies of the providers whose tools we use on our website.

Cookies placed on your device may also be used by the providers we work with. This means that, depending on the specific cookie, the information obtained through cookies may be disclosed to those providers – in our case, providers of services related to managing our website and analysing data.

The tables below show which cookies we use:

On what legal basis do we use cookies?

- our legitimate interest as the owner of the www.hmlex.pl website (for strictly necessary cookies);
- your consent as a user of www.hmlex.pl (for all other cookies).

Can I manage or delete cookies?

You may, on your own and at any time, withdraw your consent to cookies or object to the use of cookies on your device by changing your cookie settings, i.e. by specifying the conditions under which cookies are stored on and access the device you use.

You can change these settings in your web browser or in the service configuration. In particular, you can set your browser to block cookies automatically or to notify you each time a cookie is placed on your device. Detailed information on how to manage cookies is available in your software (web browser) settings.

You can delete cookies at any time using the functions available in your web browser. Restricting the use of cookies may affect some of the features available on our website and make it less convenient to use.

If you use different devices to browse our website (e.g. a computer, tablet or smartphone), you should make sure that the browser on each device is set according to your preferences.

Here you can find out how to disable cookies:

- in Google Chrome
